

Exchange program International Social Work Autumn Term 2022/2023

Protestant University of Applied Sciences Ludwigsburg

Herzlich Willkommen in Ludwigsburg!

The Protestant University of Applied Sciences in Ludwigsburg offers incoming students from our partner universities the opportunity to study with us during one semester. We offer classes in Social Work, Early Childhood Education, Deaconry, Religious Education, Nursing and Care, and Inclusive Pedagogy and Special Needs Education. At our university, you live and learn in an open and practice-oriented environment.

In spring term 2022, welcome days start from 4th October 2022 and lectures end on 24th February 2023. If you are capable to study in German, you may choose from all classes offered in your study course, gaining up to 30 credits. In addition to our classes taught in German, we plan to offer the following courses and practical experiences in English (changes and cancellation of individual courses are possible):

Module title	Credits (ECTS)
Project studies	12
Support for life management: Counselling, community service and pastoral care in international perspective	6
International, intercultural and interreligious perspectives	6
Health promotion in international comparison	6
Gender perspectives	6
Inclusion and exclusion in international perspective	6
Welfare state and social policy	6

Project studies (12 ECTS)

In this module students will work in a social field/ organisation and carry out a self-planned project. They will get to know the project-work and learn to develop, implement and reflect a self-implemented project. This module consists of a project placement and its accompanying seminar, theory-practice seminar and presentation day.

Support for life management: counselling, community service and pastoral care in international perspective (6 ECTS)

Students will acquire knowledge and skills of systemic conversation, different methodological approaches for contextual needs. They will have in-depth competence in systemic conversation management and their own professionally justified and reflected attitude in conversation with clients. This module consists of a seminar and a lecture.

International, intercultural and interreligious perspectives (6 ECTS)

In this module students will collect knowledge and learn to personal position themselves with regards to the history and present situation of Germany as a migration society. They will learn skills and develop the ability to reflect their own role against the background of an intercultural and diversity-oriented society. This will help the students to work professionally in a diverse, multicultural and interreligious world.

This module consists of lectures, a specialisation seminar and a workshop.

Health promotion in international comparison (6 ECTS)

In this module students will learn about health and health promotion as a field of social work. They will get theoretical and practical input which will help them to understand how health and other personal and social conditions are connected and how health promotion can be implemented. This module consists of a lecture and a mandatory elective seminar.

Gender perspectives (6 ECTS)

Students will deal with current issues and challenges of gender research in the context of education, employment, poverty, migration, violence, social changes of family and care work. They will learn about construction and deconstruction of gender in everyday life, in the family, in various fields of social work, as well as in national and international organisations and institutions. The module consists of lectures and a mandatory elective seminar.

Inclusion and exclusion from an international perspective (6 ECTS)

This module covers international inclusion / exclusion discourse, theories and legal bases of inclusion. Students will learn to understand inclusion and exclusion as the basis of social order and human coexistence and will be capable to create and reflect inclusive situations in Social Work and to realise inclusive educational approaches.

This module consists of lectures and a mandatory seminar.

Welfare state and social policy (6 ECTS)

Students engage with a general framework of Social Work against the background of globalisation, economisation, Europeanisation as well as social and welfare state transformation processes and learn about conditions of formation and contextual relationships of social problems and solution approaches from a macroeconomic point of view. Two seminars are mandatory: "Youth Civic Education in International and European Youth Work frames" and "Women's Equality as a Transformative Agent".
